

ANN WILSON, THE WEALTH CHEF

Professional Bio

Ann Wilson, also known as The Wealth Chef, is a best-selling author, speaker, entrepreneur and financial empowerment activist.

She began her career as a civil engineer managing billion dollar projects all over the world. Despite being “well educated” and having a well paid job, Ann found herself challenged by her own financial illiteracy and a mountain of debt. Realising there is a big difference between earning income and creating wealth, Ann began a journey to learn about money and investing and create her own financial freedom. Ann now lives a financially free life - one where she can choose to work or not and live the lifestyle she desires.

Her mission is to empower others to do the same.

In 2012, she founded The Wealth Chef, a successful online learning business that delivers dynamic training programs teaching people all over the world - from Africa to Australia, America to Europe - how to create and live a wealthy life.

One hundred percent of the royalties from her best-selling book, The Wealth Chef, are donated to The Small Enterprise Foundation - a foundation dedicated to eradicating poverty by empowering women through micro loans combined with financial literacy.

As a captivating and inspiring speaker, Ann regularly addresses organisations about personal money leadership and creating wealth.

She has been featured in
The Sunday Times,
The Sunday Express,
Psychologies, Glamour,
Cosmopolitan,
The Huffington Post,
CNBC, among others.
